Not illustrated. 1881 Excerpt: ...in the decisions of the County Court Judges. It arose, he believed, in a great measure from not having associated with them an expert on the subject of land, as many of them had little practical knowledge on that point. A suggestion had been made, which he considered was a good one, that they should associate with the County Court Judge an Assessor; but he would ask this--in the event of the Assessor and the County Court Judge disagreeing, how was a decision to be arrived at? The Prime Minister was plainly under the impression that it would be an easy matter to apply to the but, from his knowledge of the joint, he could say that it was likely to be very difficult. For 10 years he was a Commissioner of Fisheries, and in many of the cases which they had decided there had been an appeal from their decision. They had very often given away as much as £1,500 at a sitting in one way or another, and very often the interests of very poor people had been concerned. The appeals very frequently were to the Lord Lieutenant in Council; and though the parties very often considered themselves aggrieved by the decision of the Commissioners, yet, in consequence of the vast expense necessary in conducting appeals, the privilege was, in many cases, not availed of. In the first instance, the appellants had to travel up to Dublin.. " No, no! " Well, if they did not they would have to appear by counsel. " No! "" Surely they would, if they wished their case to be properly put, as counsel would be likely to be employed against them. The ATTORNEY GENERAL Fob IRELAND (Mr. Law): The sub-Commission would hear them in the first instance. Mr. BLAKE said, he was speaking of the Fisheries Commission, and he believed the cases to be analogous. He had seen peo...
