William Andrews is a doctor riddled with guilt. He lost his wife and two children to an outbreak of Scarlet Fever three years ago. It has led to his struggle with his faith. He goes through the motions of living, knowing he's one day closer to being reunited with them. But everything changes on Halloween night. It is a night when things are not always what they appear to be. Three riders show up on Dr. Andrews doorstep, one of them with gunshot wounds. While attending his patient, he makes a startling discovery that turns his life upside down. Among the riders is Lizabeth, a mysterious woman. She soon captures his heart, but she also bears scars and secrets from her past. As their friendship deepens, Will wonders if he can help her heal from more than her physical wounds.
