Weber and Rickert: Concept Formation in the Social Sciences (Studies in Contemporary German Social Thought) Guy Oakes

Philosophers and social scientists will welcome this highly original discussion of Max Weber's analysis of the objectivity of social science. Guy Oakes traces the vital connection between Weber's methodology and the work of philosopher Heinrich Rickert, reconstructing Rickert's notoriously difficult concepts in order to isolate the important, and until now poorly understood, roots of problems in Weber's own work. Guy Oakes teaches social philosophy at Monmouth College and sociology at the New School for Social Research.
