Excerpt from How We Went Birds'-Nesting: Field, Wood and Meadow Rambles

The Pewee, The Partridge, and the Whip-Poor-Will.

One happy summer, out of pure love for wild birds and a desire to know more about their ways, especially of nest-building, we two girls spent weeks in wandering over miles of country, through woods and across meadows and along the banks of streams; and I must say that were among the best spent as well as the pleasantest of our lives.

We hunted for ourselves, waited patiently, and watched and observed keenly. We met with many discouragements to be sure. As we had no books on ornithology, and no one to tell us, we were too early for some of the little architects and too late for others from not knowing their times of building, and so just missed of the nest, as was the case with the chick-a-dees, which we tramped hours to find, prying into every stump and hole in a tree, not finding because we were too early, and then not finding because we were too late - and, I may as well add, have never found at all.

Then, again, we were baffled and misled by the artful birds themselves.
